Letters from the world's most troublesome passenger

By Terry Ravenscroft

'A wickedly funny book' - Rory McGrath'Combines the comic audacity of Ali G with the put-upon charm of Mr Pooter'- David Renwick, writer, *One Foot In The Grave'Terry Ravenscroft was a very funny scriptwriter. He's now a very funny letter writer too' - Barry Cryer'Hilarious' - June Whitfield

This book is a comic gem - not to be missed!

- Hilarious comic correspondence showing how one man bamboozled over forty international airlines
- Meet the 42-stone man who has never flown before and stands fat chance of ever doing so, and the passenger who wants to enjoy his flight with his inflatable rubber woman on his knee. Not to mention the prospective tourist to Australia who wants to know at what age a baby is safe from being eaten by a dingo, and the passenger who wishes to enquire about how to fly an elephant back from India
- Laugh-out-loud funny and endlessly inventive, in the tradition of The Timewaster Letters, this is the book no traveller should be without this summer!
