One grey dismal day, Janine Marsh set out to northern France to pick up some cheap wine. She returned to England a few hours later having put in an offer on a rundown old barn in the rural Seven Valleys area of Pas de Calais. This was not something she had expected or planned for.

Janine eventually gave up her job in London to move with her husband to live the good life in France. Or so she hoped. While getting to grips with la vie Française and renovating her dilapidated new house, she started to realise there was a lot more to living the rural dream than she could ever have imagined.

My Good Life in France compiles the tales of Janine's rollercoaster ride through a different culture – one that, to a Brit from the city, was often surprising, charming and not the least bit baffling.

Janine Marsh is the editor of
The Good Life France blog and magazine.
